Preface

The GREENBRIAR is a representation of the way in which we as students have grown through our classes, activities, and social groups. It represents the spirit of Fuquay High and all it has meant to us. We, the Staff, present this book not with pride of our accomplishment, but with humility born of gratitude for having been able to work with the people in the school and the community to bring to you a product that shows how we have grown and will continue to grow and the community with us. Our new building, for which we only have the architect's drawing, proves that we are not standing still or backsliding, but ever pushing onward to meet the challenges of the future.

We, as a student body, will meet these challenges because we have had the background presented to us to prepare us for the road of life. We have had inspiration and guidance from loving hands that will help lift us over the ruts of doubt in the road of life. As we start our walk into the future we can truly say this 1957 edition of the GREENBRIAR is not the end of our class but the beginning of a new era for bringing glory to our dear Fuquay High and carrying its banner on to greater progress and fame.

Dedication

Loyal to her profession, to her fellow teachers, to her students, and to the community—a smiling inspiration to everyone who knows her, because she has meant so much to us, we, the Senior Class, dedicate the 1957 GREENBRIAR to

I have been pleased with your accomplishments during the past six years. Now, you leave us to take your rightful place in the world, at one of the most interesting and challenging times in the history of man. Tremendous changes.

During times like these, I urge you to build your life upon: (1) a proper sense of values, (2) poise, and (3) personal efforts. As you grow you will realize that a strong personality is more valuable than material wealth and that success will come to you only through your own efforts.

I urge you to dream lofty dreams; dreams that are worthy of the men and women of America. As the poet says:

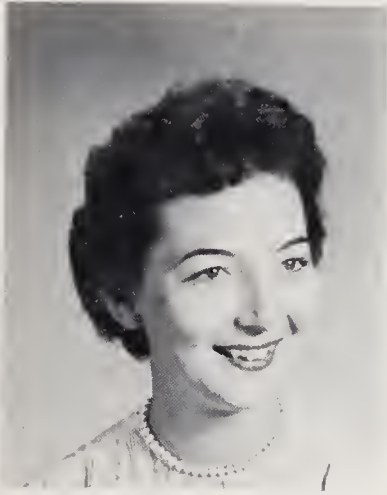

Keep thou thy dreams—though joy should pass you by,

Hold to the rainbow beauty of thy thoughts;

It is for dreams that men will oftentimes die,

And count the passing pain of death as naught.

"From Little Acorns Big Oaks Grow"

History

Look with me, fellow classmates, into the dim past at our tree and its leaf clad branches called high school. It is now spring and the tree has a new branch with ninety-three very green leaves on it. The other three branches of upper-classmen are calling us "green freshmen." We have elected for the promotion of our growth and development William Clark, president; Betty Bruce Howard, vice-president; Janet Bullock, secretary; Patricia Matthews, treasurer; and Betty Ann Hackney, student council representative. The F.H.A. and F.F.A., and the F.T.A. were the organizations which kept us in circulation with the other branches.

Spring has passed in no time, and we discover that three of our leaves have moved to another kind of tree. The experience from the spring has finally taught us to guide our sophomore class by our motto: "It is better to light one little candle than to stumble and fall in the dark." We have elected Carolyn Beck, president; Polly Adams, vice-president; Betty Ann Hackney, secretary; Patricia Matthews, treasurer; and Dottie and Anne Yeamans, student council representatives, to light some of these candles for us. Summer finds some of us eligible for the Monogram Club and proudly displaying those beautiful "F's."

Autumn has found us with seventy-two leaves remaining on our branch. Every remaining leaf has been caught in the thrilling winds of increasing activities. To organize us in our activities we have elected Polly Adams, president; Ross Olive, vice-president; Louise Craig, secretary; Betty Ray Johnson, treasurer; and Michael Kannon and Betsy Gilbert, student council representatives. The beginning of this colorful season finds these leaves called juniors peddling candy and sponsoring a chicken supper with one goal in mind—the Junior-Senior Banquet and Prom. All of a sudden, a gust of wind picked us up in the midst of all the dreaming and scheming and blew us to Williamsburg where we mixed historical tours with loads of fun. As time grew nearer for the big event, we produced "Aunt Lizzie Lives It Up" for our junior play. We used the talents of Jane Byrd, Margaret Wood, Bobby Ransdell, William Clark, Beverly Porter, Becky Stephenson, Bill

Huber, Carolyn Beck, Peggy Tingen, Michael Kannon, Betsy Gilbert, Betty Bruce Howard, and Ross Olive and many others to make this play a success. Miss Ann Adams directed the play. When we went to the trunk of the tree to count our pennies, we delightfully discovered just enough to give the seniors a glorious banquet and prom. It was truly an "Enchanted Evening" as all the fairies and elves danced in our midst. We have fourteen members to be initiated into the Beta Club under the higher average which had to be maintained for the first time. Some of the leaves were clustered in a newly formed Library Club.

We have closed this busy and beautiful season by holding the candle arches in the Seniors' Class Night. We had Betty Bruce Howard, Jane Byrd, Karen Prince, Linda Veasey, Betsy Gilbert, William Clark, Michael Kannon, Michael Williams, and Jackie Bullock as marshals for this occasion.

Winter has come upon us, and we are protected from its bleakness by our class rings which distinguish us from all the other classes. Now that we have reached the top of this tree, we have elected Ross Olive, president; Emily Wimberly, vice-president; Louise Craig, secretary; and Michael Kannon and Betsy Gilbert, student council representatives. Who are these people causing such a rustle in the remaining sixty-seven leaves? They are Michael Kannon, president of the student council; Kenneth Haire, president of the Monogram Club; Janet Bullock, president of the F.H.A.; William Clark, president of the local and county Beta Club; Betty Bruce Howard, president of the local F.T.A., and vice-president of the state F.T.A.; and making the most noise is Karen Prince, chief cheerleader; Carolyn Beck serves us well as editor of the Greenbriar and head majorette. Many of us leaves have rustled up a good song through the seasons of high school in the band and glee club.

All of us are ready to leave this branch and go on to either the tree of higher learning or the tree of hard work. As we, the Class of '57, leave this branch, we carry with us many fond memories of the seasons which passed while we clung to the tree of high school.

JANE BYRD, Class Historian

Prophecy

The heavy mist rolls swiftly from my trembling boughs, and I—the tall majestic tree of the Class of '57—stand in the lane of passing time. 'Tis a day of reminiscence—and I, too, remember.

I see each leaf which grew with me from days long past till the winds and season of graduation did take them from me, drift past, and in each leaf is pictured a face filled with glowing success and happiness. The mist has cleared, and now I see each life as it is unveiled to me.

Drifting down the lane on the tide of the wind, I catch a glimpse of Donald Broadwell, editor of the town's flourishing newspaper, THE INDEPENDENT. He is discussing its distribution with a member of his staff, Beverly Porter, whose vibrant columns lend a highlight to the news. Today's headlines feature the name of Kenneth Haire and his success at finding a new process for better purification of milk. He will try it in his own dairy first—North Carolina's largest.

Linda Veasey, the paper's foreign correspondent to France, has sent news of the discovery of a new anesthetic, which may rock the medical world, made by Ross Olive, research chemist.

The wind shifts, and I see Dr. Michael Kannan discussing the importance of this discovery with his nurses, Evelyn Lee and Ernestine Wade. His receptionist, Judy Jones, enters with the most recent medical bulletin in regard to this issue.

The prevailing course of the leaves is changed, and I find that the favorite magazine of all women has come into being under the editorship of Helen Barbour. Ideas concerning the year's newest fashions may be found in the fashion section edited by Amelia Griffin; and features most unique have been compiled by Dorothy Dones, feature editor. On this month's cover I see the smiling face of Janet Bullock, who has graced the fronts of magazine covers often.

The wind ceases to blow, and a breeze brings faces to me from faraway places. In Africa I see Louise Craig, who recently discovered a new formula for faster and cheaper mining of diamonds. Her "Coz," William Clark, who owns the mines at Kimball, is grateful to her, for it has made him a millionaire.

Overseas—and I see General Sam Stephens who has charge of 10,000 men. His chaplain, Charles Page, I see discussing world affairs with armed forces nurse, Jane Byrd, who is awaiting the arrival of supplies to be delivered by jet pilot, Mike Williams.

The breeze returns me to America and Washington, D. C. I see Betty Ann Hackney, Senator from North Carolina, who is helping to make our country a better place in which to live. In the halls of the United Nations Building I see U. S. Representative Eleanor Walters talking with Polly Adams, U. S. Ambassador to Germany. Also with them is Interpreter Betty Ray Johnson.

Soft music drifts to me—music flowing from the nimble fingers of concert pianist Karen Prince; and the lilting voice of Carol Tapper, mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Into the Metropolitan Museum of Art I am taken to view with admiration, the famed painting of Gail Kilpatrick. The sale of her pictures has been unsurpassed according to Dot Beasley, her business manager.

The voice of education booms to me from the halls of Wintergreen, a girls' school, headed by Betsy Gilbert. The matters of business and instruction are ably transacted by Rachel Barbour, Dean of Women; Mary Ellen Moore, professor of political science; and Ruth Womble, English professor. The campus is preparing for the arrival of noted guest speaker, Dr. John D. Elliott.

A whirlwind—and I see the land of Hollywood and star Bobby Ransdell, whose dramatic talent has been proved on the screens of the nation. Also on the set of Universal-International I find Juanita Keith, hair stylist, and Libby Holland, make-up artist.

Not far away in the San Fernando Valley is the ranch of Donald Buffaloe. Here radio star Charlie Clark is practicing riding and roping. He always did love horses.

From New York the breeze comes. On Broadway flashes the name of Carolyn Beck, who plays the leading role in a play adapted for the stage from the book THE TRANSFIGURATION OF YOUTH by Betty Bruce Howard.

On Fifth Avenue, I catch a glimpse of a modern store front designed by architect Jackie Bullock and erected by contractor William Dupree. Suddenly I realize that it's the exclusive dress shop owned by master clothier, Jerry Pollard. Inside, beautiful garments, designed by Emily Wimberly, are being modeled by Pat Matthews.

Television encompasses the nation and known to all is Channel X-1, TV Station owned by Larry Sherron. Patsy Wilkerson is script writer, and featured on the station are Douglas and Larry Rowland who star in the dramatic sequence—"Light for Tomorrow," Devon Parrish, moderator of the panel show "What's My Name?"; and Peggy Tingen whose voice is heard daily with weather reports.

The wind shifts and I find that my viewing takes me back to Fuquay. The town government is most ably headed by Mayor Garlon Stuart. At the moment, he is discussing financial matters with Town Manager Steve McCauley, while Town Secretary Margaret Wood takes note of their discussion.

In the bank I see successful businessman Ben Campbell talking over business transactions with Percy Stuart, owner of a large manufacturing concern. Soon they are joined by bank executive, Becky Stephenson, who is also very successful in the business world.

Swiftly I am taken down Main Street where I see the shingles denoting the professions of Dr. Betty Jean Wood—psychiatrist—and Dr. Wallace Jones—Dentist.

To dear old FSHS I find my mind led. Here now the principal is Donald Harvell. Outside the office he stands, talking sports with coach Bill Huber whose team proudly holds an undefeated record of three years. Coming up the hall is Home Economics teacher, Martha Honeycutt.

In the residential section I see the home of Phyllis Midgett who is now happily planning three meals a day.

The town radio Station WFVG is now owned by George Stephenson. The voice which comes to me now is that of announcer and disk jockey Buck Wood, as he gets ready to play the newest record by recording star, Emitte Tutor.

Theirs always was the path of good fortune and still they follow it. With the knowledge and satisfaction that the sheltering arms of my peaceful boughs did somehow help to shape and guide these lives in the path they now follow, I can hear the solitude left to me. And content with the task I have completed, I wait to become a part of the ages.

Class Poem

On winged feet these years have passed,
And our lives by time and molding hands
Have been enriched.
Each day with this, our beloved Alma Mater,
Has strengthened each purpose,
Gladdened each heart.

Though it is with sadness we soon shall depart,
It is with greater understanding
That we look to the future where life awaits us.
May our chain of ideals never be broken,
And may we each light candles to guide some other feet
In the path to eternity.

And now the time has come when we each shall embark
Upon a separate course of Life—
A delving into the unknown.
May our knowledge be manifold;
Compassion be great;
May we walk the paths of righteousness straightway,
Till we shall meet
The Master, whose loving Hand did each create,
For final graduation.
May the lesson of Life be learned full well and high each mark shall be.
And as we stand at the Gates of Heaven,
May success and humility be borne in the wake
Of the Class of '57.

Student Council

The Fuquay Springs High School Student Council's main interest is the school and its citizens and their welfare. Organized a few years ago to promote better relations between all factions of the school, the Student Council is still striving for this goal. The activities the Student Council sponsors are aimed to develop citizenship skills and social gracefulness in the students of our school.

The Student Council is composed of seven representatives from the student body, one representative from each chartered club, and one faculty member. The officers are elected from this group by the members of the Student Council. The officers for this year and their duties are President—to conduct all meetings and council business and appoint all committees—Michael Kannon; Vice-President—has same power as president in absence of president, serves in absence of secretary, treasurer, or sergeant-at-arms—Donald Bullock; Secretary—keeps minutes of each meeting and conducts all correspondence of the council—Patsy Thomas; Treasurer—takes charge of all funds of the Student Council—Judy Holloway; Sergeant-at-Arms—acts as doorkeeper to keep out persons who do not belong in Student Council meetings and sees that order is maintained in meetings—Martha Gilbert.

The Student Council sponsors many activities and projects each year. These are some that have already been accomplished this year and some that are being planned: Better School Spirit Week, Pep Rallies before football games, Dances after football games, Student-Teacher Basketball Games, A Christmas Party, purchase of a water cooler for the high school building, a magazine selling campaign, operating the School Store, paying a supplement for the principal's secretary, Twirp Season, and Orientation Day for the eighth grade.

Sportsmanship

Sports have an appeal for almost everybody. Probably, next to the weather, people talk more about sports than about any other topic. We talk about the coming game, and after it is over, we talk about what happened at the game. In the large amount of space given to sports in the newspapers and magazines, in the popularity of sports programs on the radio, and in the sports banquets that draw sports followers together, is shown the wide spread appeal of sports.

We think of almost any pleasant activity which has as its main purpose to exercise the body, as a sport, but what is a sport to one person may be just hard work for another. For instance, a day of fishing may be called a sport for the man who lives a distance from a lake or an ocean, while for a fisherman, fishing is involved in most of his daily routine.

Sports require a combination of physical strength, an alert mind, enthusiasm, purpose, and, of course, teamwork. To Americans, sports are more than amusement, for they represent accomplishment for which the body has been trained and for which one must apply himself to become skillful.

Sports have many qualities other than the mere exercise they give the mind and body. Lots of friendships are formed through sports, because of the ability of people to get along with each other. This is one of the greatest test of sports. Many finer qualities of human spirit are brought out and are developed through games. These include leadership and the ability to give and take.

Probably, even more important are the qualities that sports develop in making a person a pleasant, well adapted human being. It is well that "sportsmanship" is applied to life in general. People like a person who can win gracefully without boasting and who can lose without offering excuses. Sportsmanship is playing hard to win in a game, but losing well if you have to lose. Good sportsmanship involves such matters as fair play, keen rivalry but careful observance of rules, courtesy, and a generous attitude toward an opponent.

Every good sport remembers and follows the old saying: "It's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game that really counts."
